2021

Welcome Address

Ajala Samuel Akindede

You will agree with me that Africa is a distinctively unique continent among all 7 continents which is the second-largest continent in the world both in size and population.

For a long time now, Africa has had a very diverse culture. It is rich in cultural heritage and diversity, a wealth of natural resources, and offers breathtaking tourist attractions.

These interesting facts about Africa are must to be known. It's important to note that Africa is the most centrally located continent in the world. Both the prime meridian (0 degrees longitude), and the equator (0 degrees latitude) cut across it.

- Nigeria has the highest population (202 million people) in Africa. This represents about 20% of Africa's total population. The United Nations projects that the overall population of Nigeria will reach about 401.31 million by the end of the year 2050. By 2100, if current figures continue, the population of Nigeria will be over 728 million. According to the Census Bureau of the United States, the population of Nigeria will surpass that of the United States in 2047, when the population of Nigeria will reach 379.25 million. With those numbers, Nigeria will become the third most populated country in the world.

The major contributors to Nigerias population growth are early marriages, high birth rates, and a lack of family planning access. The birth rate in Nigeria is about 37 births per 1,000 people.

- Both the world's tallest and largest land animals both come from Africa. They are the giraffe and African elephant, respectively.

- Around 2,000 different languages are spoken in Africa and each of them has different dialects while Arabic is the language that is most widely spoken in the African continent.

- The world's longest river -- the Nile -- and the world's largest desert -- the Sahara -- both are home in Africa.

Despite this enormous feat and breathtaking fact about Africa, Today, the continent remains the poorest and least-developed continent in the world. The continent has been suffering from poverty, hunger, corruption, terrorism, mismanagement of land, illiteracy, diseases, poor infrastructure, conflict, climate change hazard among others.

In the face of this heat, Covid-19 happened to the world. On December 31, 2019, mysterious cases of pneumonia were detected in the city of Wuhan in China's Hubei Province. The virus spread extensively in the Wuhan region of China and gained entry to over 210 countries and territories causing a complete closure of daily routines, depleting global resources and, in extreme cases, causing loss of life.

Today, COVID-19 pandemic has claimed over 149,817 African lives and nearly 5 million cases have been recorded so far. Africas COVID-19 story is one of nuances. Poverty, political instability, internal conflicts, economic crisis and violations of human rights are among the components that further amplify a global health emergency such as that of COVID-19 in Africa.

In perilous times like this, there is a need for a sudden strong emergence of young change makers who will work to solve the problems bedeviling Nigeria and Africa. The Pacesetters Summit is dedicated to proffering solutions to the problems facing the giant of Africa.

Our industry experts will address, motivate, inspire and educate youths on life applicable principles for successful living in all aspects of life.

The event will also enable young change-makers to learn from top experts and icons to learn the principles of changing the status quo and having access to mentorship to get them to the top.

The summit is established to treat different aspects of life such as politics, business, academics and career, media and entertainment etc.

Your experience in this summit will be for a global lifetime impact. Welcome to the league of global young change makers.

Omowunmi Ogunrotimi(Executive Director, Gender Mobile Initiative)

Omowumi is a legal practitioner whose best friend was raped at the age of 12 and lost her life in the course of procuring an abortion when there were no effective channels to report and access legal, medical and trauma counseling services. Omowumi later came to realize that her friend’s death could have been avoided, when she found herself in the same situation. Thankfully though, Omowumi had a channel to report to through a family support system. Her survival inspired her to start Gender Mobile to fill in the gap in existing interventions in sexual and domestic violence cases.

Gender Mobile is based in Nigeria where the UN reports 23% of women had reported experiencing physical or sexual violence from a previous husband . The same study revealed that 17.3% of women had experienced such violence from a relative . Such issues are sadly also reflected in the younger population of Nigeria, with one in four girls experience some form of violence . Concerningly, of those children who reportedexperiencing violence, less than 5% received any support .

To help combat these statistics, Gender Mobile manages a 24/7 dedicated mobile telephone helpline and a web platform where potential victims and survivors can reach specialized agents, ready to provide the required help for a variety of victims' and survivors' cases. Gender Mobile earns money primarily through the use of their helpline, which they can provide thanks to funding from nine different agencies and non-governmental organizations that leverage their call center infrastructure.

Omowumi participated in the 2018 year Africa program and was awarded $10,000AUD to expand their services, work towards the proof of concept and develop their financial sustainability. They have so far reached more than 3,500 women and girls through their service.

This year, Gender Mobile is developing a mobile app dedicated to bringing its services to schools and campuses across the country. Additionally, in response to COVID-19, the Gender Mobile team has developed a contactless handwashing device and leveraged their call center to provide food to vulnerable women and children during this time.
